Badminton

The World's Best Converge on Ichinomiya! Fastest Shots, Razor-Sharp Tactics, the Ultimate Rallies

Badminton is a racket sport in which players exchange a shuttlecock over a net. It is believed to have its origins in a feathered-shuttle game introduced to Britain. All matches are best-of-three games, with the first player to win two games claiming victory. Each game is won by the first player to reach 21 points.

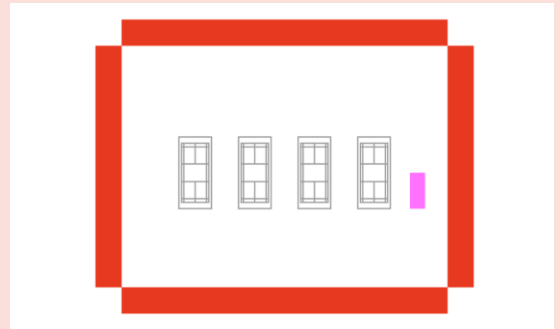

Because rallies can be enjoyed with ease by players of all ages and abilities, the sport is widely appreciated across generations.

Cycling (BMX Freestyle)

The popular BMX freestyle makes its debut at the Asian Games! Let's watch the exciting battles at the Aichi Sky Expo.

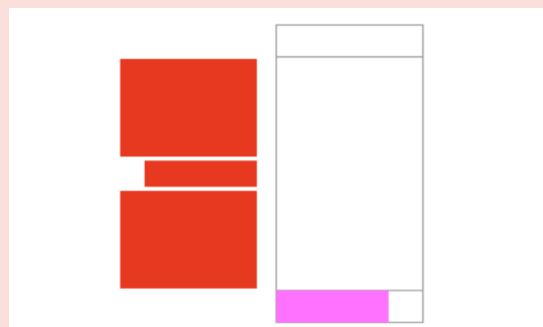

This cycling event takes place in a competition area featuring multiple jumps, where riders execute a series of spectacular aerial maneuvers. They compete based on the difficulty, execution, and originality of their tricks. While crashes or putting a foot down during the run significantly impact the score, riders boldly challenge themselves with highly original big tricks and sequences, aiming for high scores despite the risks.

Skateboarding

Athletes deliver the ultimate performance.
Not a single moment to look away.

Skateboarding has gained popularity mainly among young people and has spread worldwide as a relatively new sport.

There are two disciplines: "Street," where athletes perform tricks on a linear course, and "Park," where they compete on a course with complex shapes. It is a judged event where competitors are scored on the difficulty, execution, and originality of their tricks.

Table Tennis

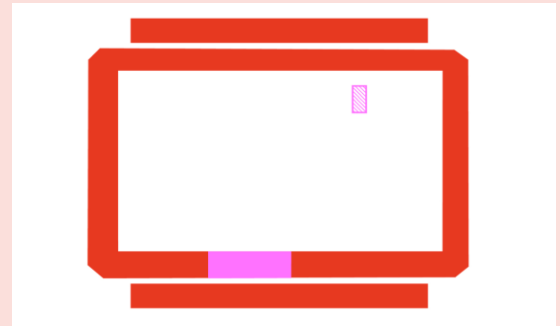

One shot, one moment can change history. Can anyone break the fortress of China, the absolute champion? Don't take your eyes off the rallies that will shake the world.

Table tennis originated in England as an indoor sport to enjoy during rainy weather. Players hit a ball—40 mm in diameter and weighing 2.7 g—back and forth across a table, competing for points. Each game is played to 11 points, and matches are typically best of 5 or 7 games depending on the event and round. Because it can be enjoyed regardless of age or skill level, table tennis is also popular as a lifelong sport.

Tennis (Tennis)

The battle of wits begins with serves exceeding 200 kilometers per hour. Mental control is also key.

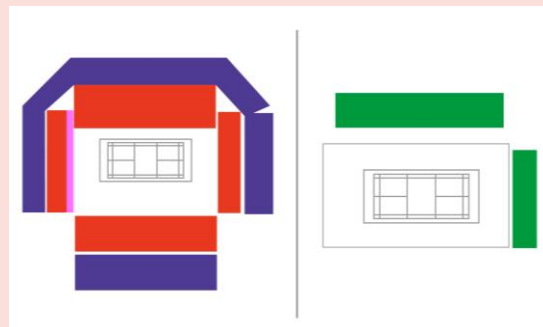

Tennis is a sport where players hit a ball back and forth using rackets across a net in the center of the court, competing to score points. There are men's and women's singles (1-on-1), doubles (2-on-2), and mixed doubles, where male and female pairs compete. Since serving gives an advantage, a key to winning is not only to reliably hold your own service games but also to break your opponent's service games as much as possible.

Volleyball

The fierce battle unfolds at the net. Break through the wall that stands in your way with skillful tactics.

Volleyball is a sport played on an 18m x 9m court divided by a net, where two teams compete to score points by hitting the ball over the net. A match consists of five sets, with the team winning three sets first declared the winner.

Players must return the ball to the opponent's court without letting it touch their own court floor, and with no more than three touches per team.

Basketball

Brilliant passwork and powerful dunks! Attractive basketball that leads to victory is here!

Five players from one team connect the ball with passes and dribbles to shoot into the opposing team's ring and compete for the goal. Shots from outside the 3-point line will score 3 points, shots from the inside will score 2 points, and free throws will be worth 1 point.

At the Tokyo Olympics, the women won a silver medal and practiced "even if they are small, they can win".

Basketball

Brilliant passwork and powerful dunks! Attractive basketball that leads to victory is here!

Five players from one team connect the ball with passes and dribbles to shoot into the opposing team's ring and compete for the goal. Shots from outside the 3-point line will score 3 points, shots from the inside will score 2 points, and free throws will be worth 1 point.

At the Tokyo Olympics, the women won a silver medal and practiced "even if they are small, they can win".

Judo

One instant. Four minutes of electrifying drama.

Judo is a martial art originating from Japan and an Olympic sport where athletes compete one-on-one on the tatami, using both standing techniques and groundwork.

Matches are held by weight category in both individual and mixed team events. Victory is determined by scoring points through techniques (Ippon, Waza-ari, Yuko) and penalties.

Premium plus

■ Premium Plus

(Shippo-yaki / Cloisonné enamel) ¥330,000 (tax incl.)

This exquisite Shippo-yaki (cloisonné enamel) collection features three distinct designs: "Honohon and Nagoya Castle" for the Asian Games version, "Uzumin and Shachihoko" for the Asian Para Games version, and the Kakitsubata (Iris), the official flower of Aichi Prefecture.

Crafted in Shippo-cho, Aichi Prefecture, this art form is known as "Owari Shippo," a designated traditional craft renowned for its superior level of technical skill.

As each piece is individually handcrafted by master artisans at the kiln, no two items are exactly alike. We hope you will enjoy these one-of-a-kind masterpieces as a lasting memory of Aichi-Nagoya 2026 while you experience the games. (Limited quantity available, each with a unique serial number.)

■ Premium Plus

(Tokoname Ware - Maneki-neko) ¥66,000 (tax incl.)

Tokoname ware is a traditional craft from Tokoname City, Aichi Prefecture.

The Maneki-neko, in particular, is a symbol of good luck, captivating people with its adorable appearance.

To commemorate the Aichi-Nagoya 2026 Games, we are offering original designs inspired by Aichi and Nagoya, incorporating the colors of the Asian Games and Asian Para Games. Enjoy these original Maneki-neko, each hand-painted by an artisan, while watching the games. (Limited quantity available, each with a unique serial number.)
